

Dragons

Introduction

There are so many stories about dragons. In some stories they are dangerous and even eat people. In other stories they are old and wise and know many secrets. They can be mean and cruel or helpful and clever.

Every story agrees that dragons must be treated with respect and approached carefully.

What stories do you know about dragons? There are dragons in Harry Potter. He has to face a bad tempered dragon in "The Goblet of Fire". There is a very mean dragon called Smaug in "The Hobbit".

Would you like to meet a dragon? Well, maybe a small friendly one.

Would you like to find a dragon's egg?

I wonder if a dragon would make a good pet.

Happy story making

What is happening here?
What is the dragon burning?
Is it being helpful or horrible?

Name _____

Dragons

Author _____

Scribe _____

Dragons

Dragons make great characters for stories.

Here are some of the things that stories tell us about dragons

- They can be huge with shiny scales
- They can be red, or green, or purple or even silver and gold.
- Dragons come from eggs.
- They can breathe smoke and fire.
- Some of them can fly on their strong, bony wings.
- They like to collect piles of gold and jewels
- They are very clever but can be tricky.
- They like to have secrets.
- Some like to live in deep caves.
- Some can change their shape
- Some are very friendly and helpful but not ALL of them are safe.

DRAGONS CAN BE DANGEROUS!

Story Ideas

Because dragons are story characters, you can let them be whatever you want them to be.

- What is your dragon's name?
(Names are very important to dragons)
- What does your dragon look like?
- Where does the dragon live?
- How friendly or unfriendly is your dragon?
- Does the dragon like meeting people?
- What does the dragon eat?
- What things are important to the dragon?
- What does he or she like to do?

Make up an adventure for your dragon

Does the dragon meet someone?

Does the dragon help someone?

Will the dragon meet you?

